*P3a. Description: (Describe resource and major elements. Include design, materials, condition, alterations, size, setting, and boundaries)

856 Capp Street is located on a 52' x 122.5' rectangular lot on the west side of Capp Street between 23rd and 24th Streets. Built ca. 1880, 856 Capp Street is a 1-story, wood frame former single-family dwelling that was converted into the Salem Swedish Baptist Church ca. 1915. By 1919, the building was expanded to fill the front yard set back. This expansion was likely the time when the building was stuccoed and remodeled to the Mission Revival style. The rectangular-plan building, clad in smooth stucco with a brick watertable, is capped by a gable roof. The foundation is not visible. The site features an ornamental case iron fence.

The building features 1 entrance, located at the north side of the primary façade, that includes a recessed door behind a metal security gate. The arched entryway is capped by a gable roof that is supported by simple square vigas and notched rafters and covered in Spanish clay tiles. A blade sign is located above the entry. Typical fenestration consists of fixed, arched, multi-light windows, flanked on either side by multi-foil oculus windows. (continued)

A pent roof, supported by braces, simple square vigas and notched rafters and clad in clay tiles, is located above the center 3 windows. The primary façade terminates in a stepped parapet with blind niches.

The secondary (south) and rear facades feature the original structure, without stucco covering. A detached single family residence is located behind the church, and is largely obscured from the street. It is clad with vinyl siding and capped with an asphalt shingled hip roof. This structure was added ca. 1915.

The building appears to be in good condition.
